The first personal website example that I feel is well designed is by Josh Rubietta. The link of the website is <https://www.joshrubietta.com/>. The screenshot above is taken from his website. One of the reason why I like this website is because although it can't be seen in the screenshot, the background is actually animated and moving. The second thing I like is this website is also animated and moving when it is scrolled up or down. The third reason is because te website is very interactive. Some interactive buttons are the music control buttons, as well as clickable buttons of direct links to download apps in both app store and play store. Another reason why I like this website is because there is a clickable button of direct links to collect payment from peopl that visits the website. I believe it is very useful and effective strategy to make money. Expected activities are more likely to happen if it is easier for someone to do it.

I also liked the home page of his website. It have a simplistic design, with a large picture of him, and his name with large fonts. This enables the visitor of his website to remember the website address easier since the website address is his just his full name. Another advantage of doing this is it enables more people to remember his name and what he looks like.

The second personal website example that I feel is well designed is by Devon Stank. The link of the website is <https://devonstank.com/>. The screenshot above is taken from his website. One of the reason why I like this website is because although it can't be seen in the screenshot, the website is actually animated and moving when it is scrolled down or up. The second reason is because the website has a very simplistic design, hence the website looks neat and clean. It is also easy for the people that visit this website to navigate and find information quickly. This website is also very interactive. Some interactive buttons are video control buttons, as well as clickable buttons of direct links to his works. Another reason why I like this website is because there is a header with simplistic design, but with one of the most important message. Expected activities are more likely to happen if it is easier for someone to do it. The last reason why I like this website is because this website uses high quality and professional looking photos.

Are the people, presence, and persuasion parts of executive leadership tripping you up or your senior managers?

I can help.

I do three distinct things:

- I help executive leaders inspire, cultivate, and positively persuade their fellow leaders in order to drive terrific business outcomes. Read more...
- I design and facilitate strategic planning processes, retreats, and other experiences for executive teams and boards of directors. Read more...
- From time to time, I help client organizations craft and implement corporate communications and public-affairs, which is how I began my career. Read

The third personal website example that I feel is well designed is by Shane Kinkennon. The link of the website is <https://www.shanekinkennon.com/>. The screenshot above is taken from his website. One of the reason why I like this website is because of the simplistic design. This makes the website looks neat and clean. It is also easy for the people that visit this website to navigate and find information quickly. The second reason is because it uses illustrations that looks simple yet easy to understand. The third reason why I like this website is because it is interactive. This website uses clickable buttons of direct links to many other web pages.

Testimonials

“In just a few sessions, Shane prompted me with really smart questions and exercises that provided clarity and focus for me as I navigated something big.”

— Jessica Klonicki, CEO, KT Tape

“Since I invested in working with Shane, I am scaling my value to my business. Our executive team will climb higher mountains thanks to subtle but crucial calibrations I’ve made as a result of working with Shane.”

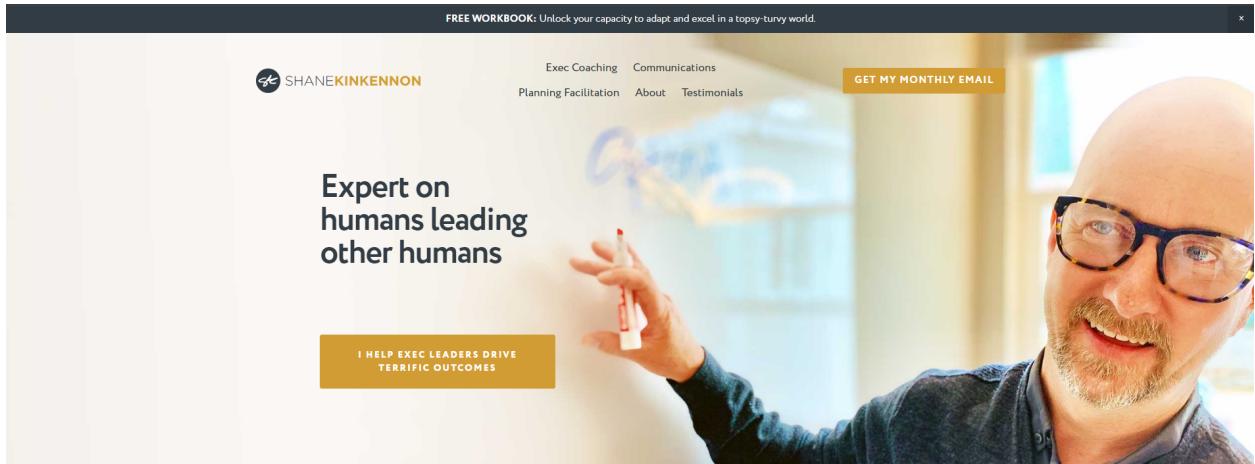

— Virgil Bretz, CEO, MacroHealth

“This is the moment for courageous leadership in the winter outdoor industry. Working with Shane, it gets easier to both consider big ideas and make tough commitments on implementation. It’s one way to get more serious about planning to make a real difference.”

— Nick Sargent, President, Snowsports Industries America

Another reason why I like this website is because it includes testimonials. I believe it is very useful and effective strategy to build trust and credibility to the viewers that visit his website.

I also like the header in his main page. It has a simplistic design with contrast choice of color. Meaning it is easy to read and it attracts attention. It also provides an important information, as well as a free service he provide to the people that visits his website. Hence, more people will remember his website address, and more people will be visiting his website.
